Draft Board Here Makes 'Dry Run' In Registration

Pickaway County draft board No. 98 made a "dry run" on the first four men registered at 8 a. m. Monday in the 25-year age group. All were either married or veterans of World War II.

First man to register here for the first peacetime draft was Joe D. Crawford, 25, of Williamsport. Crawford is married and the father of one child.

Another who showed no hesitation in arriving early was Roger May, 25, Circleville Route 1. He is married, has credit for 22 months service in an Army ammunition and renovation company.

Third man to register was Clark McFarland, 25, Circleville Route 2, who served 14 months in an Army trucking company. McFarland spent seven months in Hawaii and is married with two children.

Harvey Roby Jr., 25, of Ashville, was the fourth man to sign up for the draft. He is an Army veteran of 34 months, 22 of which were spent in England, France, Germany, Belgium and Holland with an anti-aircraft outfit. Roby is married and the father of one child.

UNDER PRESENT exemption laws, all four men will receive automatic exemptions on marital or veteran status. However, any unmarried veteran with less than 90 days service is liable for this draft, officials said.

Registration here got underway promptly at 8 a. m. in the common pleas courtroom with five registrars filling out the service draft cards. They were Mrs. William D. Radcliff, Harold Bowers, draft board vice-chairman; Miss Betty Miner, board clerk; Dorothy Updyke and Tom Renick.

Between Monday and Sept. 18, an estimated 2,500 eligible men in the 18 to 25 year age brackets are expected to register in Pickaway County.

Over the nation, about 1,200,000 men will have registered by closing time at 5 p. m. Monday in the 20,000 registration places. Officials predict, (Continued on Page Two)

9th East-West Conference Is Now Underway In Berlin

MOSCOW, Aug. 30—Envoys of the United States, Great Britain and France visited the Kremlin today for their ninth meeting with Foreign Minister Molotov on the Berlin crisis.

A four-power communique on the talks is expected to follow this East-West conference. It is not known, however, whether it will be issued tonight or tomorrow.

The talks, begun July 31, are expected to be ended by the middle of this week.

Reports indicated that agreement is near on the Berlin currency issue, although some details are still to be settled. Russia has demanded that the Soviet-issued mark be Berlin's sole currency, and the Western Powers are understood to be asking safeguards to prevent Soviet attempts to gain control over the city's economy.

THERE WAS widespread belief in London that a preliminary East-West agreement is near in the negotiations to end the Berlin crisis.

Speculation centered around the possibility that only final decisions on technical details are holding up a four-power communique announcing the agreement.

But pessimism was expressed by some that the talks will bring a quick end to the Soviet blockade of the former German capital.

The preliminary agreement is said to concern the issue of what currency — the Western Deutschemark, or the Soviet mark — shall be the sole medium of exchange in Berlin.

Western currency experts are believed studying a Soviet proposal excluding the Deutschemark from the city, but giving guarantees that sole use of the Soviet mark will not be employed to obtain economic domination of Berlin.

The most gloomy view of the current Kremlin talks was that expressed by The London Daily Telegraph. The newspaper's diplomatic correspondent wrote that prospects of a genuine agreement on lifting the blockade are uncertain.

He continued by terming "inaccurate" the reports that only final agreement on technical details is holding up a four-power communique. Such a communique, he wrote, has scarcely been discussed in Moscow.

It was believed in Washington that another Kremlin meeting might have to take place to get a formal stamp of approval on a statement satisfactory to all four participating powers.

Military Admits Commies Have Slipped Into Army

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30—Military officials admitted today that full-fledged Communists have infiltrated into the Army's ranks.

But they declared that secret check, are being expedited to detect and discharge the Reds "according to the merits of each individual case."

These officials refused to estimate the precise number of Communists and fellow travelers in uniform but described their strength as "insignificant."

An official Army spokesman also revealed that the Army recently fired a number of civilian employees because of membership or close affiliation with the Communist Party.

He expressed the private opinion that discharges have been handed out to a number of military personnel since V-J Day "for the same reason."

The spokesman pointed out, however, that the exact number of officers and enlisted men discharged because of Communist taint would be difficult to determine.

HE EXPLAINED that soldiers are never officially expelled from the service as "Communists or fellow travelers," but for such reasons as "the convenience of the government" and "at the pleasure of the President."

It is understood that only a handful of tight-lipped intelligence officers and top brass know the exact number of military personnel released from the service because of Red activities.

Army Secretary Royal has declared that there is nothing in the Selective Service law to prevent Communists from being drafted.

But his subordinates said that the Army has authority to effect the discharge of Reds once they are accepted. A spokesman added:

"Officers and enlisted men on active duty may be subjected to loyalty checks and removal.

Who Employed Red, Question

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30—Congressional spy probes hoped today to name the persons reported to have given Whittaker Chambers a government job while he was an active Communist.

Rep. Nixon, (R) Calif., declared that Chambers, now a $25,000-a-year senior editor of Time Magazine, told the House Un-American Activities Committee that two former government officials gave him a "phony" federal job in 1937.

Chambers, according to Nixon, wanted the job to "aid his work" as a paid Communist underground worker. The government officials were reported to be members of a group accused of Communist activity by "Spy Queen" Elizabeth Bentley.

Nixon said he hoped their names would be revealed at today's New York session of an Un-American activities subcommittee. The New York meeting was called to question J. V. Peters, alleged "brain" of the Communist underground in the United States, as he became a (Continued on Page Two)

Housing Status To Get Better

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 30—A Labor department official said today the U. S. can expect "gradual improvement rather than continued worsening" of the housing shortage.

Herman B. Byer of the department's Bureau of Labor Statistics declared that the shortage still is "severe" and cannot be overcome completely in a year or two. He said:

A break is coming sometime. Costs won't go down to the pre-war level, nor will there be a sharp drop of 10 or 15 percent within a few days."

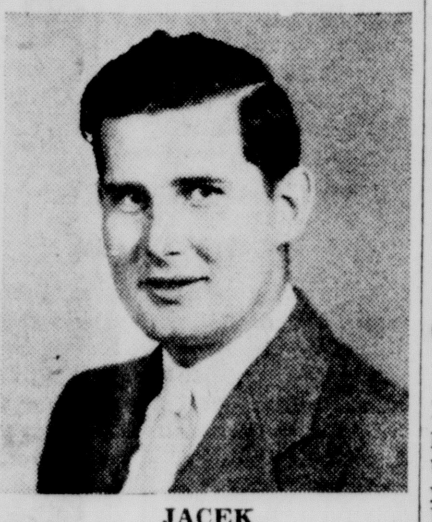

Cathode Coiling Expert Named For GE Plant Here

Richard A. Jacek has been appointed as foreman and engineer for the cathode coiling department in General Electric's new $2.5 million Circleville lamp works it was announced Monday by E. G. Grigg, plant manager.

A GE lamp department employee since 1935, Jacek attended Case Institute of technology in his home town of Cleveland. His entire service with GE has been in coiling operations at the Euclid lamp works.

In the coiling department of the new Circleville plant, fine tungsten wire will be coiled and prepared for use in Slimline fluorescent lamps. The wire will be used as a cathode, the electrode which is the starting point for the flow of current through the tube. This cathode is known as the instant-start cathode, for it enables the Slimline lamp to switch on instantaneously, without the customary flickering and delay.

Jacek's wife and year-old son will join him in Circleville Oct. 1. However, since a number of coiling machines have been received at the local plant, Jacek will make his headquarters here beginning this week.

U.S. Consulate Aide Is Shot By Palestine Sniper

JERUSALEM, Aug. 30—James Lide of Camden, Ark., an employee of the U. S. consulate in Jerusalem, was slightly wounded in the leg by an Arab sniper today.

The incident occurred on the grounds of the consulate while Lide was walking in the company of two other Americans.

Anti-aircraft guns opened fire late in the evening when an unidentified airplane flew over Jerusalem at a high altitude.

Jews and Arabs meanwhile clung long past the deadline to positions in Southern Jerusalem which they had agreed to abandon in response to a United Nations truce appeal.

Arabs fired at UN truce observers who approached Mount Zion and suburban positions to see whether their evacuation had taken place as scheduled. Meanwhile, Jews remained firmly entrenched in the Red Cross area.

36 Killed In Air Crash

Lightning Bolt May Get Blame

WINONA, Minn., Aug. 30—Officials probed the scattered wreckage of a Northwest Airlines plane today to determine the cause of a crash which killed 36 persons near here late yesterday.

Preliminary reports indicated the twin-engine Martin 2-0-2 had been struck by lightning.

Witnesses said the ship appeared to fall apart in flight as it battered its way through a hail storm en route from Chicago to Minneapolis.

The Civil Aeronautics Administration said Capt. Robert Johnson, of St. Paul, pilot of the ill-fated craft, reported over LaCrosse, Wis., that he had run into thunderstorms.

Drivers Reminded Of Parking Ban

Another reminder against parking on Court street from Pleasant street to the Pennsylvania railroad crossing Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday has been given motorists in Circleville.

The parking ban has been issued in order to facilitate the resurfacing of the street, now in full production by the Decker Construction Co. of Columbus.

Work on South Court street from the city limits to the railroad was being completed Monday, with a top layer of fine asphaltic-concrete topping the coarser base layer finished last week.

Hurricane Heading For Seaboard

Red Cross Units Set For Blow

MIAMI, Aug. 30—Ominous red and black hurricane warning flags fluttered along the coasts of the Carolinas today as a violent tropical hurricane, bearing winds as high as 120 miles an hour, roared toward the Atlantic seaboard.

Excited coastal residents began boarding up their homes and moving to safer structures in the cities.

The Miami weather bureau located the storm center about 250 miles south of Cape Hatteras, N. C., moving eastward from 10 to 12 miles an hour.

Whipping gales fanned outward from the vortex more than 140 miles.

Forecasters believe the center will pass over or near Cape Hatteras tonight, probably before midnight.

Hurricane warnings were hoisted from Cape Hatteras to Wilmington and storm warnings were displayed elsewhere from the Virginia Capes to Charleston, S. C.

THIRTY-EIGHT American Red Cross chapters in the Carolinas were alerted for emergency duty and 35 disaster workers from Atlanta left for the threatened area.

Most of the Red Cross personnel rushed from the southeastern headquarters in Atlanta knew what to expect as they had seen duty in the 1944 and 1947 hurricanes that smashed points along the South Atlantic seaboard.

Lack Of Rainfall Brings Drought Fears To Ohio

Ohio faced the fear of drought Monday as the Summer's worst heat wave trailed off to near-normal proportions.

Forecasters said that although the Ohio heat spell definitely is ended for the time being, much of the state now has gone 12 days without rain. Observers said the excessive use of water during the warm weather also reduced water supplies in most areas.

Most of Pickaway County received a small amount of rainfall Sunday afternoon but while it "was better than nothing," it was not considered sufficient to postpone the possibility of drought.

Weathermen declared Ohioans could look forward to slightly lower temperatures for at least the first part of the week, although a return of the record and near-record temperatures may come near the end of the week.

Scattered thundershowers were expected to bring temperatures down to the mid-80s in the south and central parts of the state Tuesday.

Eight to 12 mile-an-hour breezes were adding to the relief of Northern Ohioans.

The week-long heat wave was broken in dramatic fashion Sunday in the lower Scioto river valley when marble-sized hailstones fell in Portsmouth. Chesapeake recorded 102 degrees Sunday, one of the state's highest readings. Circleville's high was 96.

Meanwhile, the rest of the nation received only slight relief from the heat.

He slipped into the hole again. This time Barbu drowned before his terrified wife, also a non-swimmer, could summon aid.

Building Boom Hiking County Valuations

A postwar building spurge in Pickaway County during the last year has caused a major increase in property valuations, it was revealed in a recent survey made by a three-man board of tax revision.

New assessments totaled $306,020 which will be added to real estate tax duplicates. This will be in addition to last year's aggregate total of $46,246,720 on real estate and public utilities valuations.

The board of tax revision is made up of County Commissioner John Keller, Auditor Fred L. Tipton and Treasurer Robert Colville.

It is their function to study tax complaints in the county, make an annual survey on new construction and reappraise all county property every six years. Tipton said the latter duty will get underway sometime early next year. It is required of the board by law for tax purposes.

The addition on the tax duplicate made by this year's survey is almost double that of last year as a result of new construction in the county, Tipton declared.

A total of $153,430 was added on the real estate books last year or $152,590 less than that provided by the latest investigation on new building in the county.

Tipton, pointed out, however, that the amount added to the tax duplicate in the board's recent survey is not an exact record of all new building in the county.

Since building permits are law in only a few of the county's centers of population, there is no way to check conclusively on new buildings.

Several months ago, Circleville city council empowered a planning commission to study building needs here. The commission now appears to be practically defunct.

It would be the duty of the body to make building recommendations to city council and outline residential and industrial areas.

Last year, Pickaway County was valued at $50,660,152 in real estate, personal goods and public utilities. This figure, of course, is flexible since personal property figures are based on the public's own declaration.

Auditor Tipton emphasized that inflationary prices on homes, buildings and land in no way affect the actual valuations placed on them. At the same time, he said, neither do market values change the tax valuation. Tax valuations are, to some extent, regulated by replacement costs, deterioration and location.

In other words it means this: a house built 10 years ago for $3,000 and which today would sell for $6,000, still would be taxed on the $3,000 original appraisal value.

Today's inflationary price would not affect the tax value. So long as no major improvements were built on the house that would cause a reappraisal, the property would be carried on the same figure as 10 years ago.

Tax appraisers use two measuring rods in figuring property values. City land is valued on the foot frontage while farm land is appraised by the acre or land parcel.

Since location in a city also plays a determining function in property valuation and tax fixing, Circleville property holders in the Court-Main street district are assessed more.

Valuation decreases as it leaves the center of the city. The farther away a holding is from the center or business area, the less value on frontage is made.

Other factors enter into the property value picture and are determined by industrial and residential districts; adjustment for age, and general condition of the property.

Rates of taxation for 1947 ranged in Pickaway County from $21.20 on each $1,000 of property value in Harrisonburg to $8 on the $1,000 property value in Ashville district.

The Circleville corporation rate was $18.80 on each $1,000 of property value.

Following is a breakdown on additional real estate taxes added this year by new buildings in corporations, districts and townships in Pickaway County.

Circleville: First ward—$110,350; second ward—$20,400; third ward—$50,650; fourth ward—$32,350.

Circleville Township—$13,100; Circleville district—$13,340; Jackson Township—$100; Darby Township—$1,290; Harrisonburg district—$2,500; Williamsport—$2,900; Harrison Township—$14,290.

Ashville district—$3,000; Ashville corporation—$6,500; Scioto Township—$12,550; Commercial Point—$5,950; Washington Township—$9,900; and New Holland—$6,850.

Wallace Aide Stabbed During Speech Attempt

BURLINGTON, N. C., Aug. 30—Henry Wallace was literally chased out of Burlington this afternoon under a heavy barrage of eggs and tomatoes.

DURHAM, N. C., Aug. 30—Henry A. Wallace's Southern speaking tour took a grim turn today after one of his supporters was stabbed outside a Durham armory where the Progressive Party presidential candidate was trying to speak.

The injured man, James Daniel Harris, 24, of Charlotte, N. C., was taken to Durham hospital with cuts on his wrist and back.

Three fights broke out at the meeting last night, but police said they had no reports of any disturbance. An unidentified anti-Wallace picket was hit on the head with a chair during one of the fights.

A small panic started when a package of firecrackers exploded in the armory.

Wallace was prevented from delivering a prepared speech to a mixed audience of 1,500. Ten armed National Guardsmen paroled the auditorium.

After the meeting, police refused to say whether anyone had been arrested for the Harris stabbing. The incident occurred just outside an entrance to the armory.

For 20 minutes the Progressive Party candidate for President tried to shout a booing and heckling audience.

9th East-West Conference Is Now Underway In Berlin

MOSCOW, Aug. 30—Envoys of the United States, Great Britain and France visited the Kremlin today for their ninth meeting with Foreign Minister Molotov on the Berlin crisis.

A four-power communique on the talks is expected to follow this East-West conference. It is not known, however, whether it will be issued tonight or tomorrow.

The talks, begun July 31, are expected to be ended by the middle of this week.

Reports indicated that agreement is near on the Berlin currency issue, although some details are still to be settled. Russia has demanded that the Soviet-issued mark be Berlin's sole currency, and the Western Powers are understood to be asking safeguards to prevent Soviet attempts to gain control over the city's economy.

THERE WAS widespread belief in London that a preliminary East-West agreement is near in the negotiations to end the Berlin crisis.

Speculation centered around the possibility that only final decisions on technical details are holding up a four-power communique announcing the agreement.

But pessimism was expressed by some that the talks will bring a quick end to the Soviet blockade of the former German capital.

The preliminary agreement is said to concern the issue of what currency — the Western Deutschemark, or the Soviet mark—shall be the sole medium of exchange in Berlin.

Western currency experts are believed studying a Soviet proposal excluding the Deutschemark from the city, but giving guarantees that sole use of the Soviet mark will not be employed to obtain economic domination of Berlin.

The most gloomy view of the current Kremlin talks was that expressed by The London Daily Telegraph. The newspaper's diplomatic correspondent wrote that prospects of a genuine agreement on lifting the blockade are uncertain.

He continued by terming "inaccurate" the reports that only final agreement on technical details is holding up a four-power communique. Such a communique, he wrote, has scarcely been discussed in Moscow.

Building Boom Hiking County Valuations

A postwar building spurge in Pickaway County during the last year has caused a major increase in property valuations, it was revealed in a recent survey made by a three-man board of tax revision.

New assessments totalled $306,020 which will be added to real estate tax duplicates. This will be in addition to last year's aggregate total of $46,246,720 on real estate and public utilities valuations.

The board of tax revision is made up of County Commissioner John Keller, Auditor Fred L. Tipton and Treasurer Robert Colville.

It is their function to study tax complaints in the county, make an annual survey on new construction and reappraise all county property every six years. Tipton said the latter duty will get underway sometime early next year. It is required of the board by law for tax purposes.

The addition on the tax duplicate made by this year's survey is almost double that of last year as a result of new construction in the county, Tipton declared.

A total of $153,430 was added on the real estate books last year or $152,590 less than that provided by the latest investigation on new building in the county.

Tipton, pointed out, however, that the amount added to the tax duplicate in the board's recent survey is not an exact record of all new building in the county. Since building permits are law in only a few of the county's centers of population, there is no way to check conclusively on new buildings.

Several months ago, Circleville city council empowered a planning commission to study building needs here. The commission now appears to be practically defunct.

It would be the duty of the body to make building recommendations to city council and outline residential and industrial areas.

Last year, Pickaway County was valued at $50,660,152 in real estate, personal goods and public utilities. This figure, of course, is flexible since personal property figures are based on the public's own declaration.

Auditor Tipton emphasized that inflationary prices on homes, buildings and land in no way affect the actual valuations placed on them. At the same time, he said, neither do market values change the tax valuation. Tax valuations are, to some extent, regulated by replacement costs, deterioration and location.

In other words it means this: a house built 10 years ago for $3,000 and which today would sell for $6,000, still would be taxed on the $3,000 original appraisal value.

Today's inflationary price would not affect the tax value. So long as no major improvements were built on the house that would cause a reappraisal, the property would be carried on the same figure as 10 years ago.

Tax appraisers use two measuring rods in figuring property values.

City land is valued on the foot frontage while farm land is appraised by the acre or land parcel.

Since location in a city also plays a determining function in property valuation and tax fixing, Circleville property holders in the Court-Main street district are assessed more.

Valuation decreases as it leaves the center of the city. The farther away a holding is from the center or business area, the less value on frontage is made.

Other factors enter into the property value picture and are determined by industrial and residential districts; adjustment for age, and general condition of the property.

Rates of taxation for 1947 figured in Pickaway County from $21.20 on each $1,000 of property value in Harrisonburg to $8 on the $1,000 property value in Ashville district.

The Circleville corporation rate was $18.80 on each $1,000 of property value.

Following is a breakdown on additional real estate taxes added this year by new buildings in corporations, districts and townships in Pickaway County.

Circleville: First ward—$110,350; second ward—$20,400; third ward—$50,650; fourth ward—$32,350.

Circleville Township—$13,100; Circleville district—$13,340; Jackson Township—$100; Darby Township—$1,290; Harrisonburg district—$2,500; Williamsport—$2,900; Harrison Township—$14,290.

Ashville district—$3,000; Ashville corporation—$6,500; Scioto Township—$12,550; Commercial Point—$5,950; Washington Township—$9,900; and New Holland—$6,850.

storm shelters were being hastily set up.

Weather forecasters in Miami, who are responsible for charting the course of the hurricane as long as it remains in southeastern waters or over southern land areas, said gale winds were lashing the coast this afternoon.

Winds of full hurricane force—75 miles an hour or higher—are due to whip into North Carolina tonight.

Standard hurricane orders were put into effect at the Charleston, S. C., navy yard, while along the coast, Air Force fields were flying planes to safer bases out of the storm path.

As far south as Savannah, full scale preparations were being made, although late weather advice indicates the Georgia coast will miss the full fury of the hurricane winds.

AL W. TAYLOR, head of the Savannah weather bureau, warned that the storm is approaching Georgia's coast "from the worst possible direction as far as high tides and possibility of change of course are concerned."

Georgia authorities studied the possibility of evacuating Savannah Beach, a summer resort on Tybee Island 20 miles from the city.

Some 200 planes at Chatham Field, near Savannah, participating in a Georgia Air National Guard two-week encampment, were poised to take off at a moment's notice should officials decide they are in danger of being damaged.

Miami weather bureau officials pointed out that the Carolinas are not as well protected against hurricane damage as are Florida points, where homes and buildings are constructed to withstand the strongest winds.

Guardsmen Back After Training In Atterbury

Forty-nine men and three officers of Co. I, 166th Infantry, Circleville's National Guard unit, returned Sunday evening after a rigorous two-week training program at Camp Atterbury, Ind.

Training given the Circleville unit consisted of battle formations, tactical maneuvers, inspections, marches and firing ranges practice.

Two Circleville men distinguished themselves on the firing ranges. First was Ernest Taylor, who posted the highest score in his battalion in use of the .45 Army automatic.

Robert Shaw posted the highest score with the M-1 rifle in competition with members of his own unit, and was ranked second in the battalion.

Intense heat, coupled with the rigorous programs, caused several of the men in the local unit to collapse momentarily during the period, but no serious mishap was reported for the group.

Emergency Water Supply Still Is Maintained Here

An emergency water supply still was being maintained Monday at the Circleville pump station through a two-inch line from Darby Creek into a seepage pit.

Ervin Leist, water department manager, said a new pit was dug after the first failed attempt to release water into gravel supplying the underground water storage gallery.

No more muddy water is expected to fill the mainlines into homes. Leist said the rust-colored water Sunday was caused by silt in the bottom of the gallery which was being pumped out.

Because water now is being taken out of Darby Creek, water maintenance men are adding more chlorine to the drinking supply. It will not be sufficient to mar the taste, Leist declared.

SATURDAY, the city's old fire truck was taken to the creek-side to pump water into a pit near the pump station after the state board of health approved the emergency plan.

The pits are dug beyond 100 feet of the water gallery as a sanitation measure to help purify the water. It finds its way into water-bearing gravel which supplies the storage gallery.

Leist said bids would be re-opened Wednesday to construct a new 400-foot extension onto the present gallery. It is expected to produce an additional one-million gallons daily.

Doctors Claim Killer Daniels Is A Sane Man

MANSFIELD, Aug. 30—Robert Muri Daniels, one of two paroled Mansfield reformatory inmates who staged a two-week crime wave in Ohio during July, was declared sane today.

Daniels, who is to go on trial Friday for the slaying of three members of the John E. Niebel family, was examined by Doctors R. E. Bushong of the Lima State hospital, and J. F. Bateman of the Columbus State hospital.

The doctors declared Daniels sane at the time of the crime as well as sane at the present time. Daniels' counsel had entered a plea of not guilty because of insanity for his client.

Daniels, a Columbus resident, and his partner in crime, John C. West, killed six persons before West was shot and killed and Daniels captured in a road block near Van Wert.

At the time of his capture, Daniels bragged that he was responsible for the deaths of the Niebel family. Niebel was a farm superintendent at the reformatory.

Attorney General Tom Clark has "failed" to enforce the laws as vigorously as he should and this has been "in large part responsible for the growth and power of the Communist conspiracy in the United States."

GOP To Follow Truman's Talk On Labor Day

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30—The Republican presidential campaign is going to start in Detroit, too.

President Truman has announced he plans to launch his drive for a full term in the White House with a major address in Detroit on Labor Day.

The Republicans, not to be out done, will follow with an answering address by Harold E. Stassen in the Motor City the following day.

Herbert Brownell Jr., Dewey-Warren campaign manager, said that Stassen, defeated by Dewey for the GOP nomination, will speak for the Republican candidate at the Detroit Masonic Temple.

Brownell asserted that Stassen not only would answer Mr. Truman, but would make "the opening speech in the 1948 Republican campaign."

Sen. Taft, (R) Ohio, another defeated Republican aspirant is expected to follow Stassen in to the campaign.

Mr. Truman, meanwhile, was catching up with the work on his White House desk after a nine-day vacation cruise on

Emergency Water Supply Still Is Maintained Here

An emergency water supply still was being maintained Monday at the Circleville pump station through a two-inch line from Darby Creek into a seepage pit.

Ervin Leist, water department manager, said a new pit was dug after the first failed to release water into gravel supplying the underground water storage gallery.

No more muddy water is expected to fill the mainlines into homes. Leist said the rust-colored water Sunday was caused by silt in the bottom of the gallery which was being pumped out.

Because water now is being taken out of Darby Creek, water maintenance men are adding more chlorine to the drinking supply. It will not be sufficient to mar the taste, Leist declared.

SATURDAY, the city's old fire truck was taken to the creek-side to pump water into a pit near the pump station after the state board of health approved the emergency plan.

The pits are dug beyond 100 feet of the water gallery as a sanitation measure to help purify the water. It finds its way into water-bearing gravel which supplies the storage gallery.

Leist said bids would be re-opened Wednesday to construct a new 400-foot extension onto the present gallery. It is expected to produce an additional one-million gallons daily.

Spy Hunters Press Probe

MEANWHILE the House committee summed up its month-old inquiry with an interim report which held that:

1—Communist underground groups "are still operating in the government."

Attorney General Tom Clark has "failed" to enforce the laws as vigorously as he should and this has been "in large part responsible for the growth and power of the Communist conspiracy in the United States."

3—The committee's investigation of espionage among government "hampered at every turn" by President Truman's refusal to release the loyalty or employment records of "suspected members of the spy rings."

4—Some legal check must be found on the use by "Communists" of the constitutional immunity against self-incrimination provided by the fifth amendment.

5—New anti-espionage legislation is needed to strengthen provisions of the Mundt-Nixon Bill which passed the House but died in the Senate this year.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30—The Republican presidential campaign is going to start in Detroit, too.

President Truman has announced he plans to launch his drive for a full term in the White House with a major address in Detroit on Labor Day.

The Republicans, not to be outdone, will follow with an answering address by Harold E. Stassen in the Motor City the following day.

Herbert Brownell Jr., Dewey-Warren campaign manager, said that Stassen, defeated by Dewey for the GOP nomination, will speak for the Republican candidate at the Detroit Masonic Temple.

Brownell asserted that Stassen not only would answer Mr. Truman, but would make "the opening speech in the 1948 Republican campaign."

Sen. Taft, (R) Ohio, another defeated Republican aspirant is expected to follow Stassen in the campaign.

Mr. Truman, meanwhile, was catching up with the work on his White House desk after a nine-day vacation cruise on

11 Are Injured As Bus Leaves Road, Crashes

CAMBRIDGE, Aug. 30 — The second Greyhound bus accident within a week in Ohio injured 11 persons yesterday afternoon, one of them critically.

The state highway patrol said Mrs. Harry Combs of Atwater, was in critical condition with head and face injuries.

The accident occurred on U. S. Route 21 four and a half miles north of Salem in Guernsey County when the bus hit a car it was trying to pass, careened off the left side of the road, and tore down a mailbox, a fence and a tree.

Patrolmen said Robert Swartzlander, 25, of Akron, driver of the bus, was trying to pass a southbound passenger car when its driver, Lincoln Milhoan, 20, of Newcomerstown, turned left. Last Wednesday night, a Pennsylvania Greyhound bus crashed into a truck a few miles east of Columbus, injuring 32 persons.

Lima Policemen Confronted By Strange Slaying

LIMA, Aug. 30 — An attractive, 26-year-old woman, who was found slain in her car with a stab wound through the heart, confronted Lima police with an almost-clewsless murder today.

The victim, Mrs. Eloise Snyder, was found slumped in the seat of her auto by Bus Driver Louis Hagerden early yesterday. Hagerden reported he saw the car on two or three of his trips and decided to investigate.

Coroner Harry E. Lewis said the woman had been dead five to ten hours.

Her husband, Richard Snyder, told police they had left the Lima American Legion hall together to see a show, and then decided to go to different theatres. That was the last time she was seen alive.

The death car was found parked in a driveway near a bulk

AFL Declining Endorsements

COLUMBUS, Aug. 30 — Neither Governor Herbert nor his opponent in the November election, Former Gov. Frank J. Lausche, will receive the endorsement of the Ohio Federation of Labor.

The AFL body's educational and political league, meeting here yesterday, withheld any endorsement in the race for governor. Since the CIO's Political Action Committee took the same action Aug. 7, this means that there will be no active labor support for either gubernatorial candidate.

The AFL group did endorse President Truman for reelection and Sen. Alben Barkley for vice-president and 21 Ohio Democratic candidates for Congress.

The victim, Mrs. Eloise Snyder, was found slumped in the seat of her auto by Bus Driver Louis Hagerden early yesterday. Hagerden reported he saw the car on two or three of his trips and decided to investigate.

Coroner Harry E. Lewis said the woman had been dead five to ten hours.

Her husband, Richard Snyder, told police they had left the Lima American Legion hall together to see a show, and then decided to go to different theatres. That was the last time she was seen alive.

The death car was found parked in a driveway near a bulk

AFL Declining Endorsements

COLUMBUS, Aug. 30 — Neither Governor Herbert nor his opponent in the November election, Former Gov. Frank J. Lausche, will receive the endorsement of the Ohio Federation of Labor.

The AFL body's educational and political league, meeting here yesterday, withheld any endorsement in the race for governor. Since the CIO's Political Action Committee took the same action Aug. 7, this means that there will be no active labor support for either gubernatorial candidate.

The AFL group did endorse President Truman for reelection and Sen. Alban Barkley for vice-president and 21 Ohio Democratic candidates for Congress.

REVERSING A TREND

FROM a country predominantly agricultural in the beginning, the United States has gone far in the other direction. Large centers of population have steadily increased in number and in volume, drawing their reinforcements from the young people who started life on farms.

Their education has heretofore often tended to fit them for city life and fill them with discontent with rural conditions when they reach young manhood and womanhood.

A group of educators who met recently at Columbia University, after discussing this condition and its ramifications, concluded that the system of rural education needs a change of emphasis. Appreciation of rural life will make its advantages more obvious and lead to necessary improvements, according to these schoolmen.

Reorganization of school units and pooling of funds should make it easy to broaden opportunities for vocational study, and the trend toward decentralization of industry will be helpful in providing diversified jobs near home.

Any healthy tendency which retards the growth of large cities should be encouraged. The problems involved in housing, feeding and transporting hordes of people are becoming nearly insurmountable in some cities, causing the harassed executives of large municipalities to lose their enthusiasm for the population race. If young people can be persuaded to give their talents to the development of their own small communities, everyone will gain.

GOOD REQUIREMENT

"AS A condition of membership in this union, each member shall register and become a qualified voter and vote." This requirement is proposed for the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees and Moving Picture Operators, an A.F.L. union.

This is one union requirement of its members which can hardly meet objection. A citizen who does not make himself eligible to vote and then proceed to cast his ballot is not deserving of much consideration. A little compulsion would do him no harm.

The Chinese currency reform comes in the nick of time. Inflation there had reached the point where printing presses could barely meet the demand for money.

Every reflective driver who sees a car stuck at the side of the road has two thoughts: "I'm glad it wasn't me", and "It might be".

It is the truth, however, that I am not exactly the right man to deal with politics, finance, the state of the union and, generally, what Westbrook Pegler calls cosmos stuff.

Thus, it is with certain reservations that I circle warily around today's topic. In the last few days I have been wandering haphazardly over the face of this city, peering into its corners and lifting up rugs under which the day's dust has been swept, and what I have seen has given me the feeling that we are on the edge of a good, solid depression.

Now this kind of talk requires a special license. When you meditate out loud on things like depressions or trends, you really should be qualified for the job.

This kind of writing is known as painting on a broad canvas (a phrase employed by Mr. James C. Cain in describing his new book, The Moth, thus forcing me to begin reading it with a good-sized chip on my shoulder).

Well, I would like to paint on a broad canvas for just a moment or two. Don't take it too seriously. I probably don't know what I'm talking about.

WHAT STARTED IT ALL WAS A walk through midtown Manhattan at twilight the other night. Since I always am hunting for chartrreuse socks or a good, conservative cerise sports jacket, I paid particular attention to men's clothing stores—and found at least a half-dozen of them were going out of business.

These Days

The radio did a job for some politicians: It made it possible for their voices to carry conviction, friendliness, strength of purpose. Other men sounded awful. The public judged these men by their voices.

Some were smart enough to hire elocution teachers to beautify their voices and their manner of speaking, just as now the television technicians fix the faces of politicians as though they were movie actors. Maybe this will start a vogue of lipstick for males and every statesman will carry a compact.

Television, even with fixed faces, is liable to become a cruel instrument. The stuffed shirt will never be able to let his hair down, fearing that television will get him in his natural state. The prohibitionist orator will not be able to drink beyond his capacity, for although television cannot transmit the breath, it can catch the lordly statesman telling that one about Moe and Joe—which puts a leer in the eye and a lecherous grin on the face, and the voters will know him for what he is.

Nor will it be possible for the statesman to read other men's elocution, with magnificent eloquence, with force and power, while all the time he does not believe a word he is saying. It will take a wonderful actor to speak with such perfect objectivity. Most men's faces and manners and gestures will give them away. A man who has spent his life in the theater writes me:

"I saw the Democratic and Republican conventions on the television screen and it is a devastating instrument for politicians. That goes for all of them but Hoover. His simplicity, dignity and sincerity stood out above them all.

"Television is dangerous for politicians. It seems to emphasize the insincerity, humbug, and oratorical tricks and that means its photography at present is brutal on beauty and ugliness alike.

"Sound broadcasting leaves a lot to the imagination and many can get by; but television is a cruel instrument to most performers.

"Of course, it will be perfected as it is further developed, but as I see it, national conventions are doomed if they allow television to cover them. They should be heard but not seen."

This holds not only for national conventions but for all forms of public endeavor. Let's not mention names, but a fellow I liked very much used to make his most wonderful speeches when he was drunk—but up to his eyes. He knew how to manage, although on one occasion, when I was present, he nearly went down under the table. He was helped up and delivered one of the most graceful addresses I had ever heard. I recall the grace but not what he said.

Television will kill that kind of oratory and that kind of exuberance. Maybe the perfecting of the device will be its elimination or the elimination of hi-jinks. A television record of the dull, painstaking preparations for a spontaneous demonstration could destroy any publicity director's dream. Also, such an "American" movement of Henry Wallace's might suffer when the "Americans" are seen by television. A first-class fistfight among labor leaders might even be preferable to the speeches—on television.

CHAPTER THIRTY-ONE
"YOU SEE," Spence pointed out to Poirot, "there's no one in Warmley Vale who could possibly have a motive—unless by a coincidence someone is living here (other than the Hunters) who had a connection with Underhay in the past. I never rule out coincidence, but there hasn't been a hint or suggestion of anything of the kind. The man was a stranger to everyone but that brother and sister."

Poirot nodded.
"To the Cloade family Robert Underhay would be the apple of their eye to be kept alive by every possible precaution. Robert Underhay, alive and kicking, means the certainty of a large fortune divided amongst them."

"Again, mon ami, I agree with you enthusiastically. Robert Underhay, alive and kicking, is what the Cloade family needs."

"So back we come—Rosaleen and David Hunter are the only two people who have a motive. Rosaleen Cloade was in London. But David, we know, was in Warmley Vale that day. He arrived at 5:30 at Warmley Heath station."

"So now we have Motive, written very big, and the fact that at 5:30 and onward to some unspecified time, he was on the spot."

"Exactly. Now take Beatrice Lippincott's story. I believe that story she overheard what she says she overheard, though she may have tinged it up a little, as is only human."

"Only human as you say."

"Apart from knowing the girl, I believe her because she couldn't have invented some of the things. She'd never heard of Robert Underhay before, for instance. So I believe her story of what passed between the two men and not David Hunter's."

"I too," said Poirot. "She strikes me as a singularly truthful witness."

"We've confirmation that her story is true. What do you suppose the brother and sister went off to London for?"

"That is one of the things that has interested me most."

"Well, the money position's like this. Rosaleen Cloade has only a life interest in Gordon Cloade's estate. She can't touch the capital—except, I believe, for about a thousand pounds. But jewelry, etc., is hers. The first thing she did on going to town was to take some of the most valuable pieces round to Bond St. and sell them. She wanted a large sum of cash quickly—in other words she had to pay a blackmail."

"You call that evidence against David Hunter?"

"Don't you?"

Poirot shook his head.

"Evidence that there was blackmail, yes. Evidence of intent to commit murder, no. You cannot have it both ways, mon ami. Either that young man was going to pay up, or else he was planning to kill. You have produced evidence that he was planning to pay."

"Yes—yes, perhaps that is so. But he may have changed his mind."

Poirot shrugged his shoulders.
"I know his type," said the Superintendent thoughtfully. "It's a type that's done well during the war. Any amount of physical courage, audacity and a reckless disregard of personal safety. The sort that will face any odds. It's the kind that is likely to win the V.C.—though, mind you, it's often a post-humous one. Yes, in wartime, a man like that is a hero. But in peace—well, in peace such men usually end up in prison. They like excitement and they can't run straight, and they don't give a hoot for society—And finally they've no regard for human life."

Poirot nodded.
"I tell you," the Superintendent repeated, "I know the type."

There was some few minutes of silence.
"Eh bien," said Poirot at last. "We agree that we have here the type of a killer. But that is all. It takes us no further."

Spence looked at him with curiosity.
"You're taking a great interest in this business, M. Poirot?"

"Why, if I may ask?"

"Frankly," Poirot spread out his hands, "I do not quite know. Perhaps it is because when two years ago, I am sitting very sick in my stomach (for I did not like Air Raids, and I am not very brave though I endeavor to put up the good appearance) when, as I say, I am sitting with a sick feeling here," Poirot clasped his stomach expressively, "in the smoking room of my friend's club, there, drowning away, is the club bore, the good Major Porter, recounting a long history to which nobody listens; but me, I listen, because I am wishful to distract myself from the bombs, and because the facts of his relating seem to me interesting and suggestive. And I think to myself that it is possible that someday something may come of the situation he recounts. And now something has come of it."

"The unexpected has happened, eh?"

"On the contrary," Poirot corrected him. "It is the expected that has happened—which in itself is sufficiently remarkable."

"You expected murder?" Spence asked skeptically.

"No, no, no! But a wife remarries. Possibility that first husband is still alive? He is alive. He may turn up? He does turn up! There may be blackmail. There is blackmail! Possibility, therefore, that blackmail may be silenced? Ma foi, he is silenced!"

"Well," said Spence, eyeing Poirot rather doubtfully. "I suppose these things run pretty close to type. It's a common sort of crime—blackmail resulting in murder."

"Not interesting, you would say? Usually, no. But this case is interesting, because, you see," said Poirot placidly, "it is all wrong."

"All wrong? What do you mean by all wrong?"

"None of it is, how shall I put it, the right shape?"

Spence stared.
"Chief Inspector Japp," he remarked, "always said you have a tortuous mind. Give me an instance of what you call wrong?"

"Well, the dead man, for instance, he is all wrong."

Spence shook his head.
"You do not feel that?" Poirot asked. "Oh well, perhaps I am fanciful. Then take this point. Underhay arrives at the Stag. He writes to David Hunter. Hunter receives that letter the next morning—at breakfast time?"

"Yes, that's so. He admits receiving a letter from Arden then."

"That was the first intimation, was it not, of the arrival of Underhay in Warmley Vale? What is the first thing he does—bundles his sister off to London?"

"That's quite understandable," said Spence. "He wants a clear hand to deal with things his own way. He may have been afraid the woman would have been weak. He's the leading spirit, remember. Mrs. Cloade is entirely under his thumb."

"Oh yes, that shows itself plainly. So he sends her to London and calls on this Enoch Arden. We have a pretty clear account of their conversation from Beatrice Lippincott, and the thing that sticks out, a mile, as you say, is that David Hunter was not sure whether the man he was talking to was Robert Underhay or not. He suspected it, but he didn't know."

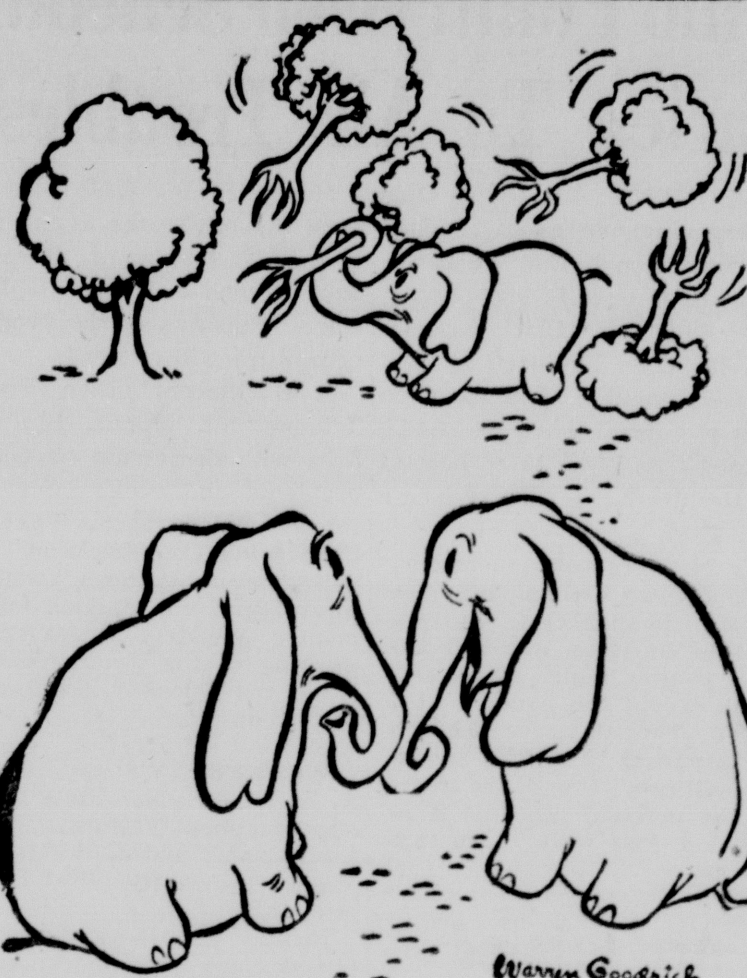

"But there's nothing odd about that, M. Poirot. Rosaleen Hunter married Underhay in Capetown and went with him straight to Nigeria. Hunter and Underhay never met. Therefore, though, as you say, Hunter suspected that Underhay was Underhay, he couldn't know it for a fact—because he had never met the man."

Poirot looked at Superintendent Spence thoughtfully.
"So there is nothing there that strikes you as—peculiar?" he asked.

"I know what you're driving at. Why didn't Underhay say straight out that he was Underhay? Well, I think that's understandable, too. Respectable people who are doing something crooked like to preserve appearances. They like to put things in such a way that it keeps them in the clear—if you know what I mean. No—I don't think that that is so very remarkable. You've got to allow for human nature."

ONE MAN'S OPINION

The corn crop has begun to worry Washington. This is no time for a surplus which might bring the price down if the government didn't keep it up.

But as I understand it now, each party is willing to claim responsibility for high income but neither one is responsible for high prices.

Or as the man with two heads remarked, "Let's talk about me as a single personality."

But there is a feeling this year that the American voter will not be fooled again. Instinctively he will vote the wrong way.

Mr. Truman is back from nine days at sea and Gov. Dewey has returned from 18 holes of golf. Nothing has been heard from the Indian wrestling entry.

However this heat wave can't be as serious as we think. Henry Wallace hasn't attributed it to the Republicans and Democrats.

"Don't you?"

Poirot shook his head.

"Evidence that there was blackmail, yes. Evidence of intent to commit murder, no. You cannot have it both ways, mon ami. Either that young man was going to pay up, or else he was planning to kill. You have produced evidence that he was planning to pay."

"Yes—yes, perhaps that is so. But he may have changed his mind."

Poirot shrugged his shoulders.

"I know his type," said the Superintendent thoughtfully. "It's a type that's done well during the war. Any amount of physical courage. Audacity and a reckless disregard of personal safety. The sort that will face any odds. It's the kind that is likely to win the V.C.—though, mind you, it's often a post-humous one. Yes, in wartime, a man like that is a hero. But in peace—well, in peace such men usually end up in prison. They like excitement and they can't run straight, and they don't give a hoot for society—And finally they've no regard for human life."

Poirot nodded.

"I tell you," the Superintendent repeated, "I know the type."

There was some few minutes of silence.

"Eh bien," said Poirot at last. "We agree that we have here the type of a killer. But that is all. It takes us no further."

Spence looked at him with curiosity.

"You're taking a great interest in this business, M. Poirot?"

"Yes."

"Why, if I may ask?"

"Frankly," Poirot spread out his hands, "I do not quite know. Perhaps it is because when two years ago, I am sitting very sick in my stomach (for I did not like Air Raids, and I am not very brave though I endeavor to put up the good appearance) when, as I say, I am sitting with a sick feeling here," Poirot clasped his stomach expressively, "in the smoking room of my friend's club, there, droning away, is the club bore, the good Major Porter, recounting a long history to which nobody listens; but me, I listen, because I am wishing to distract myself from the bombs, and because the facts he is relating seem to me interesting and suggestive. And I think to myself that it is possible that someday something may come of the situation he recounts. And now something has come of it."

"The unexpected has happened, eh?"

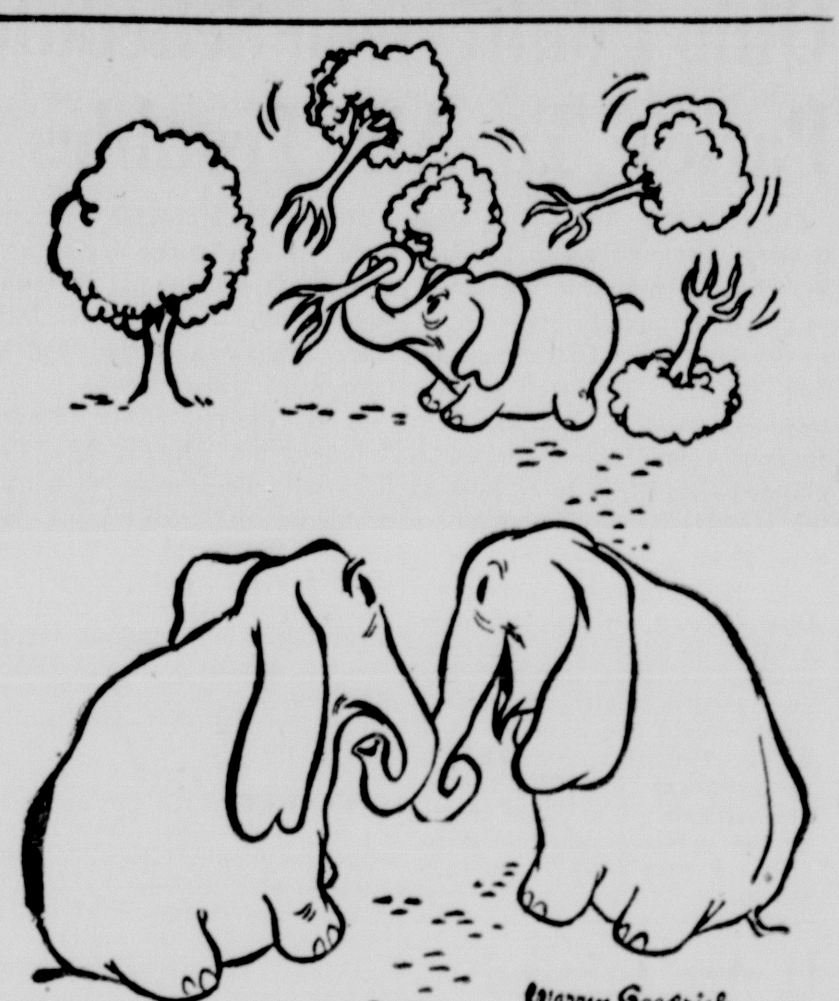

"On the contrary," Poirot corrected him. "It is the expected that has happened—which in itself is sufficiently remarkable."

"You expected murder?" Spence asked skeptically.

"No, no, no! But a wife remarries. Possibility that first husband is still alive? He is alive. He may turn up? He does turn up! There may be blackmail. There is blackmail! Possibility, therefore, that blackmail may be silenced? Ma foi, he is silenced!"

"Well," said Spence, eyeing Poirot rather doubtfully. "I suppose these things run pretty close to

Polly Jane Kerns Weds Henry Leroy Thomas In Sunday Ceremony

First EUB Church Scene Of Wedding

First Evangelical United Brethren church was the setting Sunday for the wedding of Miss Polly Jane Kerns of Circleville and Henry Leroy Thomas of Amanda Route 1.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John N. Kerns of West Union street. The bridegroom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Thomas of Amanda Route 1.

The Rev. Carl L. Wilson, pastor of the church, read the ceremony at 4 p. m. before the altar decorated in baskets of pink and white gladioli, ferns, and white tapers in seven-branched candelabra.

The bride, on the arm of her father, approached the altar through a taper-lighted aisle.

For the occasion she chose to wear a white marquisette gown fashioned over heavy white satin. The gown featured a drop shoulder effect with insets of net at the neckline. A bustle in the back terminated into ruffles which encircled the hemline of the full skirt. The long sleeves came to points over her hands. Her fingertip veil of sheer illusion was caught by a Juliet cap.

She carried a small white prayer book belonging to her great, great, great grandmother. It was topped by an orchid tied with streamers, white satin ribbons that had springs of stephanotis caught in the bow knots. Her only jewelry was a bracelet from Rho Kappa Delta sorority of which she was affiliated while at Otterbein College.

Preceding the bride to the altar was her cousin Patty Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Brown of Circleville. The little flower girl was dressed in a frock corresponding to that worn by the bride. She carried a miniature basket of flowers.

Miss Esther Thomas of Amanda Route 1, sister of the bridegroom, was maid of honor. She was dressed in blue and carried a nosegay of yellow pompons.

Mrs. Clifford L. Kerns of Circleville Route 1, sister-in-law of the bride, was matron of honor. Miss Miriam Zeigler of Dayton was bridesmaid. Both attendants were gownned in pink net and carried identical nose gays of pink and white pompons and wore garlands of flowers in their hair.

Carl Lower of Amanda served as best man. Groomsmen were Clifford L. Kerns of Circleville Route 1, and Jesse Ritchie of Circleville Route 1.

Montford Kirkwood Jr. accompanied by his sister, Miss Lucille Kirkwood of Circleville sang, "Always" and, "I Love You Truly". As the couple was kneeling he sang "The Lord's Prayer".

Approximately 75 relatives and friends were invited to a reception immediately following the ceremony in the home of the bride's parents. Assisting hostess were Miss Marjorie Francis and Miss Vivian Martin.

Refreshments were served buffet style from the bride's table. Centering the table was a decorated wedding cake, baked by the bride's grandmother, Mrs. C. O. Kerns. It was topped by the traditional miniature bride and bridegroom. Tall tapers and Fall flowers were used for decorations.

Mrs. Kerns received her guests in a brown crepe dress with a shoulder corsage of white carnations.

Mrs. Thomas, mother of the bridegroom, wore a blue crepe frock. She had a corsage of pink carnations.

When the new Mr. and Mrs. Thomas left for an undisclosed wedding trip, the bride had changed to a poudre-blue and white dress and white accessories. She pinned the orchid from her wedding bouquet to her lapel.

The new Mrs. Thomas was graduated by Circleville high school and attended Otterbein college, Westerville. She is affiliated with Rho Kappa Delta sorority. While attending college she was a member of the band and orchestra.

The bridegroom was graduated by Amanda high school and now is employed in Lancaster, where the new couple will establish a home.

Following the rehearsal Saturday, the wedding party and a group of friends were entertained in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas, parents of the bridegroom. Assisting them were Mrs. Clarence Hunter and Mrs. Fredrick Solt.

Cash To Defend Horseshoe Title

CANTON, Aug. 30—Bobby Cash, 1947 state champion, will defend his title in the Ohio Horseshoe State Tournament next Saturday and Sunday at Canton's Ringierland courts.

Ellis Hanna, twice runnerup in three of the state tournaments he has competed in, will also be entered in the contests.

Officials are expecting 50 entrants for the two-day meet.

And so we progress. I sometimes wonder what Daniel Webster, Abraham Lincoln and William Jennings Bryan, to say nothing of Demosthenes, did without a microphone. They made themselves felt; that we know by the influence they exercised. But could they be heard without the piece of tin that is stuck up before every speaker these days? And I sometimes wonder if the multitude would have elected so homely and gaunt a figure as Abraham Lincoln President had they seen him on television in competition with let us say, the glorious profile of John Barrymore.

Perhaps in the near future, the national committees will each have a department of cosmetics and candidates will be chosen because they are photogenic just as in 1940 Republicans were looking for a glamorous candidate. Or maybe we shall turn the whole business over to the hucksters and nominate the tobacco auctioneer who makes all that meaningless noise on the radio.

Progress sure is exciting—but it does make it hard for statesmen. There is too much to keep up with.

County Junior Olympics Team Is 10th In Nation

Twenty Pickaway County youths returned Sunday from the National Junior Olympic relays having left a definite impression on the 23 other communities—nearly all metropolitan—against whom they competed.

The Circleville crew did not win top laurels in the event but outside the metropolitan areas, the Pickaway County aggregation was unexcelled.

Of all the teams entered in the event, which included competition for both boys and girls in three age groups, Circleville placed 10th in the overall meet and sixth in the 14-15 year old age group.

In the latter category, first place went to Cincinnati, followed by Cleveland, Columbus, Toronto, Canada, Erie, Pa., and Circleville.

IN THE overall meet standings, the first five cities above ranked in that order followed by Washington D. C., Canton, Seewickley, Pa., and then Circleville.

Among the teams which followed Circleville in the standings were Athens, Avon, Chicago, New Orleans, Bronx, Ypsilanti, San Angelo, Texas, Woodward, Okla., Harrisburg, Pa., Berea and Strongsville.

The Pickaway Countians brought home five medals from the national event held Saturday on the Baldwin-Wallace college campus in Berea, near Cleveland.

Tommy Phillips of Circleville collected two of these medals. One came as he placed fifth in the 60-yard low hurdles for boys in the 14-15 age group.

He got his second medal as a member of Circleville's third-place team entered in the 240-yard shuttle relay for 14-15 year-olds.

Other members of this team, who were given medals, were Bob Armour of Ashville, and John Valentine and Dwight Radcliff of Circleville.

Circleville lost a sixth medal when a flip of a coin turned against Dave Coffland who had been tied for fifth in the high jump for 12-13 year-olds. A lad from Athens won the toss against Coffland.

Of the 20 lads sent to the meet, three alternates did not participate. Of the remaining 17, 14 were able to qualify in Saturday morning's preliminary events.

QUALIFIERS included members of three relay teams, Phillips in the hurdles, Ron Wilson in the broadjump and Jerry Rooney in the 60-yard dash.

Other boys who made the trip were Cooke Metzger, captain, Bob Turner, Ralph Sampson, Mike Rooney, Jim Hoffman, Jim George, Wilson Martin, Jim Starkey, Cecil Sowers, Jim Bringer, Ted Raymond, Jerry Pritchard and Lowell Thomas.

The Pickaway County group included no girls and no entries in the 16-17-year-old age group. It was in this latter category that Cincinnati and the other big cities racked up the majority of their points.

John Heiskell, leader of the Pickaway delegation, said Monday he was fully satisfied with the results.

"Considering the kind of competition we faced," he said, "we did remarkably well. We defeated some great athletes and we lost to some great athletes." He added:

"Regardless of the final score, we feel that the $400 expended on this venture was well worthwhile for it not only gave a chance to 20 lads to make a valuable trip, but it gave a great opportunity for 100-odd other county youths to compete for the chance to make that trip."

HEISKELL, long noted as one of this county's leaders in "giving the kids a break" declared Monday that:

"We are going to do this again next year and in another three years, the Pickaway County team will be going to the nationals in chartered buses and with a band and we're going to parade in Cleveland's big public square and tell the whole world that 'we didn't come just for the ride.'"

The local team made the trip in four private autos. A fifth car had been promised the boys by two different owners. Each backed out at the last minute and the boys were jammed in the four cars.

They were driven by Heiskell, Chet Starkey, Earl Metzger and Wayne Leist. Other adults who made the trip were Joe Varney and Snow Seymour.

The boys left Circleville Friday morning, got lunch about half-way to Cleveland and were given beds in a dormitory on the B-W campus that night.

Next morning, they qualified and in the afternoon entered the major eliminations of the meet. Sunday morning, all of the boys attended church services and started back to Circleville, arriving here in later afternoon.

Heavy Bats Give Isaly Team 10-0 Win Over Tinks; Boyers Next

Isalys softball team blasted itself into a clear shot at the Circleville Softball League tourney title Saturday night by swamping Tinks 10-0 in a five-inning loser's bracket final game.

The Saturday win mitches the Isaly crew against Boyers, winner of the winner's bracket, for the final tourney title tilt.

In the Isaly-Tink tilt, Isaly Pitcher Harry Strawser, of the Chillicothe softball league, blanked the Tinks, allowing only four hits in the fracas while walking none and whiffing five.

Leon Sims and Wilson Clark poled the longest drives of the game, each good for four bases. Sims' homer came in the first inning, a rightfield smash with two aboard, and Clark lined his in the fourth frame with one aboard.

The game was called at the end of the fifth inning when, according to tourney rules, Isalys was accredited with the win by posting a 10-run lead at that point.

ISALYS IS to play the Boyer ball club at 8:15 p. m. Monday. Boyers holds the edge over the Isaly swatters, since, by virtue of winning the winner's bracket title, it must be unseated by two straight losses, while it can cop

Ashville Reds Close On Heels Of Chillicothe

Leadership of the South Central Ohio Baseball League was narrowed down to less than a half-game Sunday when the Ashville Reds trimmed Greenfield 11-1.

The Ashville win gave the Reds a 13 won and four lost record for the season. Chillicothe had no game scheduled for Sunday.

The Greenfield aggregation began the scoring in the Sunday Ashville tilt, posting a single tally in the first frame. However, the Ashvillers retaliated in the last of the first frame by scoring a single and adding another for good measure. It was Ashville's ball game from the first inning on.

Ashville Catcher Kirby was credited with the longest safety of the game, a homer to centerfield. Jay Gregg of the Ashville squad came in second in scoring honors, piling two doubles in the contest.

World-Circling Flivver Plane Pilot To Be Here Sept. 13

Local Port To Be Scene Of Visit

George Truman To Tell Adventure

Pickaway Countians will get a chance soon to chat with an aviator who flew around the world in a flivver plane.

The aviator is George W. Truman who, with Clifford Evans, of Washington D. C., last year loafed around the globe as the two men piloted separate Piper Cruisers and visited dozens of foreign cities and nations.

Truman, still flying the same plane, "City of Angels," now is barn-storming around the country booming private flying in the "grass roots."

Robert Swift, manager of Circleville's Thomas Airport, said Monday that Truman and his "City of Angels," named after Truman's hometown of Los Angeles, would be here Sept. 13.

Truman is scheduled to appear here at 9 a. m. and stay until 1 p. m. He is booked in Lancaster in the afternoon.

TRUMAN'S companion, Evans, will not be here. Evans apparently became impressed with the Orient as the two fliers hopped around the globe, for he now is associated with a commercial airline in China.

Truman's plane, "City of Angels," still is plastered with reproductions of flags from the nations he visited. Swift said that he has met Truman and has found him to be "a congenial, ordinary guy who likes nothing better than to give a grounding in his first airplane ride."

The flier will be Swift's guest and no charge will be made at the airport for visitors to chat with Truman or examine his plane.

Swift is attempting to arrange with school authorities an appearance by Truman before students.

At the same time, Swift said he hopes to arrange a public noon luncheon where businessmen, unable to come to the field during the morning, may meet Truman.

It is probable that one of the local civic clubs will sponsor the luncheon although it will be open to the public.

Truman, like Swift, a booster for private flying in small airplanes, comes to Circleville with a long log of flying hours, a dearth of mishaps and a "sold" attitude toward flying for the average wage-earner.

2 More Firms Join Chamber

Two more local business firms have been added to the active membership rolls of Circleville Chamber of Commerce.

John Magill, chairman of the Chamber's membership committee, identified the firms as Glitt's Grocery and Croman's Hatchery.

Magill said the current campaign would end with a general membership meeting in mid-September.

Truman, who with Clifford Evans in another flivver plane, girded the globe in the Piper Cruiser in the background, will be here to boost private flying and to tell tales about his historic flight.
